

So you've completed the PSC, what comes next?

BARBRI

Altior

There are so many great things to do after you've qualified, including training!

Put it into action

Now you're qualified, it's time to put what you learned from the Professional Skills Course into action.

Think about the future

Think about where you want your career to go. Is it Litigation? Is it Management? Do you want to become a partner?

Pinpoint gaps

Once you've decided where your career is headed, identify what training and support you will need to get there.

Speak to experts

Speak to your training manager or provider and let them know what training you think you need.

Make your mark

With the correct training, continue to grow and develop. It's your time to put your stamp on the legal profession.

Continue your development

Knowledge is power, and continuing professional development training can support overall career progression. From personal skills such as time and stress management to professional skills such as mediation, our expert trainers are on hand to support you.
